

Phidget Runway

Computer Science 1302 is a freshman programming course that challenges students with topics such as Object Oriented Design and Graphical User Interfaces. Students were challenged to create software that interacted with "Phidgets" that measured quantities such as light, vibration and motion and controlled different motors. Students exhibited their phidgets in the Atkinson Hall lobby on April 26.

